From Saturday Auguſt 12, to Tueſday Auguſt 15, 1775.

Tranſlation of the Regulations made by the Chamber of Commerce of Normandy, concerning the Four Light-houſes lately erected on that Coaſt, which are to be lighted on the Firſt Day of November, 1775.

LIGHT-HOUSES on the Coaſt of Normandy.

Information for Navigators.

NAVIGATORS are informed, that, by the Authority and under the Protection of the King, the Chamber of Commerce eſtabliſhed by his Majeſty at Rouen, for the Province of Normandy, have cauſed to be erected on the Coaſts of the ſaid Province four Towers or Light-houſes, in which Coal Fires will be conſtantly lighted, and kept burning from Sun-ſet to Sun-riſe, commencing from the Firſt Day of November, 1775.

Poſition of the Light-houſes.

Theſe Light-houſes are placed, One on Cape Gatteville at the Point of Barfleur; Two on Cape de la Heve near Havre de Grace; and the Fourth on Cape Lailly, two Leagues and an Half Weſt of the Port of Dieppe, between this Port and that of St. Vallery en Caux.

Deſcription of BARFLEUR Light-houſe.

The Light-houſe of Barfleur, ſituated on the Point of the Rock which forms Cape Gatteville level with the Surface of the Water, is raiſed on a Baſe, in order to preſerve the Foot of it from the Breaking of the Sea. From the Foundation of this Baſe the Body of the Light-houſe is eighty-eight Feet high; and the Iron Lanthorn, which contains the Fire, is fifteen Feet high. The Point of Cape Gatteville towards the Sea is near a Quarter of a League from Barfleur to the North, forming a very low rocky Point, running into the Sea about three hundred Fathom, and in a Line with the Steeple of the Pariſh Church of Gatteville, which ſtands on the Summit of the Coaſt. All the neighbouring Coaſt is very rocky, of a Kind of Granite; of which Stone the Tower is built.

Light-houſes of LA HEVE.

Cape La Heve is ſituated about a League North-weſt of Havre de Grace. It has been thought neceſſary to diſtinguiſh it from the others by Two Towers, and to place them in ſuch a Manner, that they cannot be ſeen in a Line by any Ships coming from the North, North-weſt, or Weſt; in order that, in coming from the Offing, there may be no Poſition in which they can be miſtaken for the Towers of Barfleur or Lailly, which are ſingle.

The Tower neareſt to Havre, which is the Southernmoſt, is placed fifty Fathom from the Edge of the Cliff; the other bears North forty-one Degrees Eaſt by Compaſs, or North twenty-five Degrees thirty-four Minutes Eaſt corrected Courſe, diſtant fifty Fathom from the firſt; ſo that their reſpective Direction is ſuch, that if you draw a right Line from the Center of the Firſt to the Center of the Second, and from the Center of the Firſt another Line towards the North, the Angle formed by theſe two Lines, the Point of which will be in the Center of the Firſt Tower will be North forty-one Degrees Eaſt by Compaſs, or North twenty Degrees Eaſt, corrected Courſe.

It follows from this Poſition, that Ships making for the Mouth of the River, or for Havre, will ſee the Towers in a Line only in one Point, which is very hazardous to attempt before Half-flood, eſpecially when near the North Coaſt, conſidering the Dangers which encompaſs the little Road of Havre. Theſe Towers are built with Free-ſtone; they are placed on a Level, and are of an equal Height. The Bodies of the Light-houſes, meaſuring from the Surface of the Ground, are fifty-ſix Feet high; and the Lanthorns fifteen Feet.

Poſition of the Light-houſe of LAILLY.

The Light-houſe on Cape Lailly is ſituated eighty Fathom from the Edge of the Cliff, facing the Rock named La Galére, which is the moſt conſiderable of thoſe marked on the Coaſt under the Denomination of the Rocks of Lailly. It is on the Top of the Cliff, facing the Rocks, that the Tower is built, which may be ſeen by a Boat when at the Entrance of the two Jettées of the Port of Dieppe. The whole Height of the Light-houſe, meaſuring from the Ground, is fifty-ſix Feet; the Lanthorn fifteen.

Reſpective Poſition of the Light-houſes with each other.

The reſpective Poſition of theſe Light-houſes is ſuch, that ſuppoſing a Veſſel coming from the North, and deſirous to come into Havre, They will ſee immediately the Fire of Cape Lailly, which in fine Weather they can keep Sight of till they catch the Fires of La Heve; and Ships going out of Havre, to go out of the Channel, will not be long after they loſe Sight of the ſaid Fires of La Heve before they perceive that of Barfleur; or, in a Word, Ships coming from Sea, who would go either into Havre or Dieppe, after they ſee the three Fires of the Caſkets, will preſently perceive the Fire of Barfleur, which will direct them to the Sight of the two Fires of La Heve, if they are going to Havre, or to the Fire of Lailly, if they are going to Dieppe.
